Dear Mr. Pearson,

I am writing to congratulate you, and everyone at the Loughborough plant, on the occasion of the plant's 125-year anniversary. I remember visiting the plant years ago with my parents. As we were shown around and had a chance to talk to employees, we realized that a tremendous amount of dedication and pride was going into the manufacture of each and every product. A feeling of history and tradition was also evident when we saw massive turbogenerators being built in the same plant that had built arc lighting equipment a century prior. We left feeling that this was indeed a special place. Today on the occasion of your 125th year celebration, I am glad to see that the company started by my great-grandfather continues to thrive, and continues the tradition started at Loughborough 125 years ago. Again, you have my sincere congratulations on your remarkable achievement.

Kind Regards,
